So far as operettas and musical comercies are concerned, the Academy of Music opened last night with "The Red Canary," and opened wide.

The Mackey Production Company, Inc., which presents Lina Abarbanell in the piece, calls it a "musical play," but what it is all about deres even an imagination trained to dream out musical comedy plots. There is a vaguely excetched suggestion that a Parisian "color philosopher" has so successfully studied the psychology of the effect of colors upon the emotions that he can create love of various kinds by surroushades of the spectrum—whether by means of tinted walls, or clothes of sergeous hue.

The story is all about that canary, if you can follow that—I couldn't.

But it doesn't matter about the story. The "show" is a different matter, it includes one of the best-voiced light sepranes on the American musical comedy stage; several men who sing as one has no right to expect from any except operate singers, at the very least; a light comedian who is one solid laugh; a woman character.

Scrimmage Game.

Vesterday afternoon the elevents from the Medical College of Virginia and Richmond College engaged in a scrimmage game at Broad Street Park. Though a drizzling rain fell, the boys were put through sharp practice, and new plays were tried out with some success.

Harding, a new player, appeared in the Medicos' squad. He is quick and knows just where the runner is going. Schenck at quarter hard fallen rapidly since 6 o'clock in the evening, and all signs pointed to a cold rain throughout the night.

The diamond at Shibe Park has been covered with strips of heavy canvas, in hope of keeping this part of the field ing whenever she appears, and the best-looking, best-dressed lot of splitskirts that the Academy stage has blushed under for many a day.

Added to all these, or supplied to them, are several pretty song numbers, a trio-terzetto, to speak in high-browese—of genuine merit, and in-numerable clever and amusing lines. True, the songs and the laughable scenes do not belong especially to the stery; indeed, they simply happen, just as the star acts happened in Anna Held's vaudeville show. But the point is that they do happen, and besides there is no Anna Held to interrupt their joyful sequence. After all, it is probably just as well that the incidents do not happen together too co-

T. Roy Barnes, formerly a big "single" in vaudeville, and one of the very few good-locking comedians on the musical stage, not only has a part fat with humor, but adds a lot of business of his own that increases its humor infinitely. Without him, the performance would suffer the loss of more than half its comedy value. The rest of the amusement is supplied by Nita Barnes, whose work is original and

President Closely Follows First Game

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Washington, October 7.—President Wilson was only half a minute behind the players in to-day's world's series game in New York. Throughout the contest between the Ginnts and the Phillies bulletins were received in the White House telegraph room and rushed to the President's desk, where they took precedence over official business. The President had already refused an offer of tickets to the game from friends. He said that he was too busy here in Washington with the currency bill and the Mexican prob-lem to accept the offer.

HARMONY COMES

Very Little Patronage for Virginians Until Delegation in Congress Gets Together.

Congress Gets Together.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Washington, D. C., October 7.—Senator Martin spent some time at the White House to-day, but he assured The Times-Dispatch correspondent that he did not discuss Virginia patronage matters with the President, According to the Virginia Senator, there was no mention of such matters to-day. He went there, Senator Martin said, to discuss the urgent deficiency bill.

In spite of this statement there has been a feeling here for several months that it is high time Virginians were being let into the patronage crib. Just why nothing has been done toward filling the offices of United States district attorney and marshal, as well as that of collector of internal revenue in the State of Virginia, while in South Carodina, Florida and Georgia and other States of the South these matters were considered long ago and places formerly filled by representatives taken by Democrats is something that the average Virginian who comes to Washington is unable to understand.

To the politicians and the man behind the lines, it is quite plain why job-seekers in Virginia, with the exception of one or two places which have been filled, are still out in the cold, but to many of those who have been patiently waiting for something to fall it is a mystery.

Naturally it is the desire of the President to have complete harmony in the Old Dominion, and his policy has been that when he found certain members of the delegation not united in the way of recommendations, to hold off in his appointments. Such a situation has not existed in every case, but it appears to be the rule which the White House is following. The President wants complete harmony among the Congressional delegations, but so far as the man on the outside waiting for something to fall is concerned, many of them are wondering, when after all they are to be recognized.

It is the plain truth to say that there are some who are not in sympathy with this policy, and who would prefer to see incretangible evidence of the forthcoming jobs

Louisville, Ky., October 7.—With the $15,000 endurance race as the feature, the ten-day meeting of the Churchill Downs Racing Association will begin to-morrow afternoon on the Churchill Downs Racing Association will begin to-morrow afternoon on the Churchill Downs course. The field that will go to the post for the rich stake in the fourth mile race will comprise the pick of long-distance runners in this ston's three-year filly Pandorina, There probably will be only five starters, including Mrs. L. A. Livingston's three-year-old fille Pandorina, whose performances on the Canadian circuit this summer has led many to pick her as a world's record-breaker. Sam Jackson, winner of the Saratoga cup, and Prince Eugene, who was purchased at Saratoga for a large-sum by Jeff Livingston, of Cincinnati, are other notable starters.

The track is in excellent condition, but horsemen do not expect the record will be broken in to-morrow's endurance race. Following is a list of starters, riders and weights:

Sam Jackson (Loftus), 119; Pandorina (Gross), 105; Frince Eugene (Kederis), 108; Flora Fina (Griner), 119; Beautiful (Peak), 119; Donerail, 108; Pinhooker, 119.

Doubtful starters.

Laurel, Md., October 7.—Go Tell Us, the champion British Columbia colt, defeated a swell field here this afternon and stamped himself as one of the best youngsters of 1913. In the lot were Superintendent, Flittergold, Tranid and others. The Westerners played the colt heavily, and there was much rejoicing when he landed.

Sam Hidreth made an old-time clean-up on August Belmont's Belmour. Hildreth got as good as 10 to 1 for his money. After the victory Herrick, owner of Sherwood, who finished second, titled Belamour $1,090 over his entered price, but Hildreth protected the son of Rocksand and Beldame.

Madeline L., bred by Adolph Spreckles, of California, won the steeplechase.

Guard on Last Year's Team Causes Surprise by Return to Virginia.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Charlottesville, Va., October 7.—Undergraduates who watched the football practice at Lambeth Field this afternoon were furnished quite a surprise when Jett, left guard on last year's varsity, trotted on the field with the squad. The big Kentuckian looks to be in good shape, and should be ready to get into the game within a fortnight. To-day he ran through signals with both the first and second teams.
